

Ed-Co Alumni
Adrian Johnson
Written by Addy Kirby

Adrian Johnson graduated in the class of 1995. Attending college right after high school at Luther, Adrian is now a Director of Asset Liability Management. Today he resides in Reinbeck, Iowa. When asked how he got where he is today he replied, "Through high school I wanted to do something in the field of science. After a summer job at the bank and the first semester at college, I realized that I would prefer a path in the financial industry." Adrian said, "I enjoyed the time with so many teachers and coaches through my time at Ed-Co that it's too long to list. Through college and my career, I have met people from so many different backgrounds and sizes of schools and the thing that I am most thankful for about Ed-Co is the opportunity to be involved in a wide range of activities. Whatever your interest is: athletics, band, chorus, fine arts, FBLA, NHS, FFA, school government, and the opportunities are endless. All these experiences provided me with the awareness to appreciate the nuances of those different specialties to this day." His advice to current students and graduates is, "Be involved. Take a chance. Volunteer time, expertise and money to causes you are passionate about." Adrian uses what he learned at Ed-Co to help him excel in his everyday life. He is a Viking for Life!
