Courtney (Niehaus) Reinsmoen
Written by Addy Kirby

With a heart for helping others Courtney Reinsmoen, formerly Courtney Niehaus, graduated from high school in 2003, attended college, and is now a nurse practitioner. Courtney currently resides in Solon, Iowa with her husband and their children. When asked how she got where she is today she stated, “I became a nurse right out of college. When my daughter was diagnosed with Rett syndrome I knew I needed a career advancement for our family, which took me down the path of becoming a nurse practitioner. Her advice to current graduates is, “High school doesn’t define you, and while the years may be great, there’s so much great yet to come. Do what makes you happy.” Courtney is reaching for the stars and doing things the Viking way.
