Katie (Busch) Hoeger - Class of 2015
Ed-Co Alumni

Katie Busch, now Katie Hoeger, can still be found in the classroom. She is touching the lives of her 3rd grade students every day. Katie graduated in the class of 2015. After high school she attended the University of Northern Iowa for their teaching program. Katie currently resides in Vinton, Iowa with her husband, Seth. When asked how she got where she is today she replied, "Having the opportunity to have a 'field experience' in the career path I was thinking about going into. This allowed me to see if teaching was really what I wanted to do before getting into college." Katie's favorite parts about Ed-Co were participating in all the sporting events and having the opportunity to take college classes in high school. Mr. Lutgen helped her a lot by encouraging her to follow what she wanted. The advice she would give to current high school graduates is, "Take any college classes you can in high school. This will help lighten your load when you get into college. Check with your guidance counselor to make sure the classes will transfer the way they are supposed to before taking college classes." Katie was proactive with her education and is striving for success. Katie was and always will be an Ed-Co Viking!
