Following graduation she attended Northeast Iowa Community College, later transferring to Luther College. Miranda currently resides in Edgewood with family and sharing dance with her hometown keeps her here. When asked how she got where she is today she stated, "Becoming a professional dance teacher was always my goal. So that was at the front of all the decisions I made regarding what college to attend and what coursework to pursue. I am very glad I took classes in business and entrepreneurship, as well, as they have definitely helped on my journey as a small business owner." Miranda's advice to high school students is "Always do what brings joy." This Viking is making an impact by sharing her love of dance with her hometown. Once a Viking, always a Viking!
