Written by Addy Kirby

Nichole Burgett, now Nichole Dugan, graduated in the class of 2001. Following graduation she went to Iowa State University and majored in computer science and computer engineering. Nichole currently works in cloud cybersecurity and lives in Johnston, Iowa. When asked how she got where she is today she said, "After graduating from Iowa State, I started working as a programmer at the Iowa Department of Transportation. I continued that path for a few years before going back to school to get my masters in Information Assurance from ISU. I currently work at Principal Financial Group as a team leader for securing cloud infrastructure." Her advice is to always keep learning and following things that interest you!
